Schneeberger, a German Tape Lace, originated about 1920 in a lace school in Schneeberg in the Erzgebirge, Germany. After the Iron Curtain fell, Lia Baumeister-Jonker, a superb lacer from the Netherlands who had fallen in love with Schneeberger, visited the school and took patterns and laces with her to show. She had been experimenting with color because the original designs were all in white.

The characteristics of Schneeberger lace include: a tape lace with narrow parts in linen stitch (cloth stitch) and wide parts in double stitch (whole stitch), an outside plait, and occasional fillings. The fillings could be plaits, picots, leaf stitches, crescent leaves, and all are worked as they would be in Guipure lace. It is a fun lace to work using minimum pairs, perhaps four, five, or six. One fun fact is that no diagram is necessary because all the markings for the stitches are on the pattern. The class will focus on the special attributes of Schneeberger utilizing small motifs which are easily completed.

Pat Morris has been making lace since the '70's and has been teaching since the '90's. A retired educator, she has taught from kindergarten to grad school. With a colleague, she co-authored seven books, which were published by the educational arm of Simon and Schuster. She loves teaching and demonstrating lace. She lives in a multi-generational household of 4 adults, 2 dogs, 2 cats, and a pond full of koi (the koi are not in the house!).

Class is limited in size. Enroll now! Come learn some new tricks to add to your lacemaking skills. Class is held 9am-4pm each day at the Auburn Town Hall, 11000 Washington St, Chagrin Falls, Ohio 44023.
